Tara is a foremost authority on consciousness architecture – the intentional design of great lives. A lifelong student of art, science, and spirituality, she offers eye-opening, insightful coaching that makes the complex beautifully simple.

As a Yale- and MIT-trained architect, Certified Life Mastery Consultant, Certified Parent Educator, and Religious Science Practitioner, Tara understands what it takes to transform a life from the inside out. She helps people design and manifest lives aligned with their Soul's purpose, inspiring clients to live their highest vision with love, clarity, and joy.

AV REQUIREMENTS

Tara takes her commitment to your group quite seriously. She understands that you have invested a great deal of time, money and energy into your event, and would like to offer you some suggestions to make sure you receive the maximum return possible on your investment by receiving the best presentation possible.

Mics & Tables

- Tara prefers a behind the ear mic when possible. Please make sure that the AV department has a back-up microphone available at all times. Our suggestion would be to have someone from your group assigned to the microphone system should any adjustments be needed for volume, bass, feedback, etc.
- Tara uses Powerpoint slides during her presentation. She will need a LCD Projector and a cable to connect it to her laptop. She has an adaptor to fit your projector into her laptop.
- Tara controls with her clicker so her computer needs to be within range. Please provide a draped table for close to the stage for the projector.
- Please have water available for Tara.
- Audio and/or video taping is available with prior written authorization and a digital copy of the recording for her personal use. If the presentation is modified, edited or cut in anyway for public use, Tara must approve it before release.
- Please have a draped table available for Tara's products and someone available to assist her during the day of her presentation.

Successful Meeting Tips

- Theater or classroom seating is preferable. We understand that when planning on or around a meal, this is not possible.
- If the event is in a hotel, for the benefit of your audience, and Tara, please request from the hotel or auditorium management that the meeting room have no distracting noise from an adjoining room, such as a singing group, rock band, etc. during the time Immacula is presenting her keynote or seminar.
- It is difficult to build intimacy and rapport if your audience is distracted. Please instruct the banquet staff to clear up either BEFORE or AFTER the speaker's presentation.
- When a photographer is present, please ask them to refrain from taking photos the first 15 minutes of the program. This can be distracting to the speaker and audience.
- Please make sure the room is well lit especially the staging area. People remember more and laugh more in bright rooms. Tara prefers to see the faces of the audience. This allows her to see how they are responding to her presentation.
